

List of Camp Needs Told By YWCA Publicity Director

If you're doing spring cleaning and wondering what to do with the assortment of articles, still in good condition, that aren't using any more, check the YWCA camp needs list, then call your local YW. Mrs. Otis S. Blackstone, public relations director, advised this week.

In an effort to reduce the cash expenditure necessary to get camp ready to open June 29, Mrs. Blackstone said, the YWCA is hoping that community-minded citizens will donate to the camp many of the items now stored in garages or basements.

The list of needed articles is long and varied, she continued, including strong chairs, benches, bookcases, books, records, magazines, and 12 shower curtains of plain white duck.

A gas stove with heat control oven is needed for the superintendent's cabin, and gas heaters and water heaters, also are in demand. An electric fan and restaurant-size meat slicer are needed for the kitchen. As the camp is being renovated, Mrs. Blackstone said, plywood will be useful to replace beaverboard walls in some cabins. All kinds of pipe and plumbing supplies also can be used. Brownie or box cameras for campers' use, along with other photographic supplies and equipment such as a paper cutter, printer and timer, will be of use to the new photographic interest groups. All kinds of craft tools and athletic equipment also will be welcomed by the girls.

Vertical Blinds Open New Vistas to Home Windows

Something new, reputed to be the first in over a century, has been added to windows.

The new window decor idea is vertical blinds, which combine decorative qualities of drapes, curtains, and shades, while controlling the flow of both light and air through the use of vertical fabric louvers.

Most appealing to women is the fact that because blinds have vertical surfaces, dust does not lodge on the louvers. This dust-free quality is reported to save the woman of the house an estimated 90 per cent of her normal window blind cleaning time, according to a recent survey.

The fabrics meet challenging California sun and climate conditions and are water-proof, color-fast, sun-fast, and strikingly colorful. Virtually hundreds of color combinations are available. When it is desired to change colors, the louvers may be easily slipped off and replaced with a new set at nominal cost.

While the original louvers are being used, they may be readily cleaned by wiping with a damp sponge.

A concealed control rod with finger-tip handle rotates the vertical blind louvers into any position to permit varying degrees of light and air. If desired, blinds may be equipped with electrical controls so that they may be effortlessly operated from a central location through a wall-mounted push-button which electrically rotates them to any desired position.

Where it is necessary to cover unsightly window outlines, the blinds are positioned from floor to ceiling. They also may be used directly over the window area, framing the glass. As an idea, the lower cornice box of the blinds can be made up as a decorative planter for artificial or live plants.

A further use of the blinds has been an inexpensive room partitions where it is desirable that circulation of air be uninterrupted.

Color preferences indicated by home owners show a trend toward more subtle window decor. Beige in solid versions, or combined with brown and green for a drapery effect, is popular—as are grey and pale yellow, and rose with eggshell. Dark green and chartreuse are perennial favorites, while recent demand also has included light blue tones.

Vertical blinds are sold through leading department stores, and home furnishings and window covering stores throughout California, as well as throughout the nation.

Local Firm's Designs Shown At Home Show

The "All-Season House," a feature of the 1953 Home Show at the Pan Pacific auditorium, is designed for modern living, and the living room furniture in the "All-Season House," constructed by Martin-Bratrud, Inc., at 1400th and Western in Torrance, is designed for modern relaxing.

The key piece in the living room furnishings is the large, sectional, curved divan, covered in a frost white metallic textured fabric. Martin-Bratrud, Inc., designer manufacturers, produced this and other over-stuffed furnishings in the modern home living room.

Complementing the divan is a low, square tuffet, made with buoyant foam rubber, and upholstered in an American Beauty shade. A small accessory chair, covered with the same fabric, is also the work of the local firm.

The "All-Season House" is a preview of trends in low-cost homes, designed for California living. The Home Show will close this Sunday.
